GLAD SUGGESTIONS

If you grow gladioli for cut flowers for your home we would advise fewer varieties and greater quantities of each. If you grow your gladiolus as a hobby and enjoy seeing the many different types and forms develop as the season advances we would recommend the newer varieties with a selection of more varieties.

Perhaps the most satisfactory planting is a cross-section of the two plans—some of your planting for cut flowers and some for pleasure.

Our planting is free from thrip and our stock is healthy. In fact there is very little thrip in this part of the country.

REMEMBER

That while you can buy bulbs at a lower price than we offer they may not at that be a bargain. You plant a bulb for a given purpose, the space and care are the principal items of course, and the disappointment at blooming time cannot be corrected for one year, hence reliable service is paramount and this we endeavor to give.

Bulbs are not manufactured articles and as yet there is no means of overcoming adverse seasons or other natural conditions. Skill, training and years of experience are the greatest safeguard against the production of an inferior stock. In spite of this stock will some times fail to be up to standard and if any of our stock is found to be thus we will endeavor to replace the same with satisfactory stock.

Remember, however, that the gardener has his share in the matter. Good bulbs alone are not enough, good growing conditions and good care cannot be overlooked or neglected if good results are to be obtained. We replace free of charge any bulbs that fail to grow or that do not come true to name.

WHAT ABOUT PRICE?

Are collections and other schemes a legitimate excuse for lowering prices?

We are endeavoring to give the lowest possible price for a dependable article, and good service. Here the customer selects the varieties they are most interested in and are not forced to take something else as a substitute. Our aim is to supply a service to home owners and garden lovers who are regular customers for our products and should not be required to pay as much for a sizeable quantity order as should the casual buyer who only is in the market for two or three items of the more staple varieties. (For such service see our retail catalogue). To make the service as flexible as possible we accept orders at these prices as low as $1.50.

SHOULD YOU BUY NOW?

The prices contained herein are, we believe, very low, and are what we expect to charge throughout the season. As an inducement to early buyers we will give you a 10% discount from these prices until our regular retail catalogue is ready for mailing. If at that time we have made any reduction in price we will adjust same on your order. Your order now will protect you against any advance in price, also insure you against any disappointment in our not being able to fill your order on the more popular varieties which are nearly always short the latter part of the season, the ones you may perhaps want most.
